LAND-SIGHTING (OP. 31) . . . Edward Grieg

INCIDENTAL SOLO BY MR. WERRENATH.

And it was Olaf Trygvason,
Sailing o'er the great North Sea,
Seeking a new and distant kingdom
Where yet unknown was he.
Straight where his bark is steering,
"What is dimly before our eyes appearing?"

And it was Olaf Trygvason,
Seemed without approach the land,
Then were his young and kingly wishes
Shattered upon the strand;
'Till of his men, one sighted
Lofty peaks mid snowy clouds, all whited.

And it was Olaf Trygvason,
Suddenly before his sight
Rose temple walls on high majestic,
Ice domes and towers so white.
Then on that shore so glorious
Olaf longed to stand for aye victorious.

Spring's youthful verdure decked the land,
Purling streams made music there;
Though o'er the ocean storms rushed wildly,
Soft breathed the woodland air.
Organs and chimes were pealing,
Then King Olaf spoke in rapture kneeling:

"Here the land is, this the strand is,
 Temple arches front the darkness!
 Spirits tremble, hearts are beating,
 Lips the highest praise repeating!
 Let my faith as firm be grounded
 As the glacier purely rounded;
 May I, filled with loving fervor,
 Worship God and bless him ever!"

—Translated from Björnstjerne Björnson.

*OBLIGATO SOLO BY MR. WELLS.

The night has a thousand eyes,
 And the day, but one;
 Yet the light of the whole world dies
 With the dying sun.

The mind has a thousand eyes,
 And the heart but one;
 Yet the light of a whole life dies
 When love is done.

b

Ah! how the rills are murm'ring,
 Are murm'ring far and near!
 The moon and stars in heaven
 Seem drawing close to hear.

It is the sweetest singing,
A singing ev'rywhere,
As if 'twere made to comfort
A heart bowed down with care.

How glad, dear rills, I hearken
Unto your cadence blest,
While stars above are watching,
And round are night and rest.

The weary hours have vanished,
And with them care and pain;
God grant, when I am dying,
I hear your song again!

Ah! how the rills are murm'ring,
Are murm'ring far and near,
The moon and stars in heaven
Seem drawing close to hear.

It is the sweetest singing,
A singing ev'rywhere,
As if 'twere made to comfort
A heart bowed down with care.

c

Hear'st thou the nightingales warbling
Notes full of love's sweet power?
Soul-stirring lays they're trilling,
Heaven and earth list willing,
Softly breathes the night hour.

Softly to us from azure,
Birds trill of love's sweet power;
Rapturous joys we're drinking,
World and its cares all sinking,
Softly breathes the night hour.

'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves,
 Did gyre and gimble in the wabe:
 All mimsy were the borogoves,
 And the mome raths outgrabe.

"Beware the Jabberwock, my son!
 The jaws that bite, the claws that scratch!
 Beware the Jubjub bird, and shun
 The frumious Bandersnatch!"

He took his vorpal sword in hand:
 Long time the manxome foe he sought—
 So rested he by the Tumtum tree,
 And stood awhile in thought.

And as in uffish thought he stood,
 The Jabberwock, with eyes of flame,
 Came whiffling through the tulgey wood,
 And burbled as it came!

One, two! one, two! and through and through
 The vorpal blade went snicker-snack!
 He left it dead, and with its head
 He went galumphing back.

"And hast thou slain the Jabberwock?
Come to my arms, my beamish boy!
O frabjous day! Callooh! Callay!"
He chortled in his joy.

'Twas brillig, and the slithy toves
Did gyre and gimble in the wabe:
All mimsy were the borogoves,
And the mome raths outgrabe.

The Walrus and the Carpenter
Were walking hand in hand,
They wept like anything to see
Such quantities of sand.
"If this were only cleared away,"
They said, "It would be grand."

"O Oysters come and walk with us,"
The Walrus did beseech.
"A pleasant walk—a pleasant talk
Along the briny beach;
We cannot do with more than four,
To give a hand to each."

The eldest Oyster looked at him,
But not a word he said,
The eldest Oyster winked his eye,
And shook his heavy head,
Meaning to say he did not choose
To leave his oyster bed.

Four little Oysters followed them,
And yet another four,
And thick and fast, they came at last,
And more and more and more,
All hopping through the frothy waves,
And scrambling to the shore.

"But wait a bit," the Oysters cried,
"Before we have our chat,
For some of us are out of breath,
And all of us are fat."
"No hurry," said the Carpenter,
They thanked him much for that.

"A loaf of bread," the Walrus said,
"Is what we chiefly need,
Pepper and vinegar besides
Are very good indeed.
Now if you're ready, Oysters dear,
We can begin to feed."

"But not on us," the Oysters cried,
Turning a little blue,
"After such kindness that would be
A dismal thing to do."
"The night is fine," the Walrus said,
"Do you admire the view?"

"I weep for you," the Walrus said,
"I deeply sympathize."
With sobs and tears he sorted out
Those of the largest size,
Holding his pocket handkerchief
Before his streaming eyes.

"O Oysters," said the Carpenter,
"You've had a pleasant run,
Shall we be trotting home again?"
But answer came there none;
And this was scarcely odd, because They'd eaten every one.

—Lewis Carroll.

SERENADERS

Maiden fair, O deign to tell
 If my ditty please thee,
 Then I'll sing a last farewell,
 And no longer tease thee;
 Thou wert made in courts to shine,
 Not in chains to languish;
 Ah! what sweet delight were mine,
 Could I soothe thine anguish.

SERENADERS.

Maiden fair, O deign to tell
 If my ditty please thee,
 Then I'll sing a last farewell,
 And no longer tease thee;
 Thou wert made in courts to shine,
 Not in chains to languish;
 Ah! what sweet delight were mine,
 Could I sooth thine anguish.

Maiden fair, the radiant stars
 Vigils now are keeping,
 While the flow'rs on mossy beds
 Tranquilly are sleeping;
 But no stars can ever shine
 With the radiant splendor
 Of those bright blue eyes of thine,
 Beaming soft and tender.

Maiden fair, till you appear,
 All is dark and dreary,
 Do not let me linger here,
 Sad at heart and weary;
 Let thy smile, like morning light,
 Chase away all sadness,
 Come then forth, in radiance
 bright,
 Fill my heart with gladness.

ANGRY PARENT (suddenly awakened).

Hallo! who's there! who are you?
 Begone, I say! begone! won't you go?
 Begone, I say, you rogues begone!
 What's your name? What d'ye want?

You caterwauling rogues, begone!
 And of this midnight squalling
 make an end.

Bridget, go and call the watchman,
 He will quickly quell the riot;
 Sure the rogues are drunk or mad.
 You idle villains. You are full
 Of wine and punch,
 Wife, count the silver spoons,
 Mind the hen-roost; thieves! murder!
 Quickly run and fetch me down the blunderbuss.
 To their own music the rogues shall dance.

Plague upon you, drunken rascals,
 Pray how much longer do you mean
 To caterwaul beneath my window?
 How much longer do you mean to caterwaul?
 Get you gone, you noisy villains,
 You caterwauling rascals, get you gone.

b

Blow, blow thou winter wind
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude;
Thy tooth is not so keen,
Because thou art not seen,
Although thy breath be rude.

Heigh-ho! sing, heigh-ho!
Unto the green holly:
Most friendship is feigning,
Most loving mere folly.
Sing, heigh-ho! the holly;
This life is most jolly.

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky,
Thou dost not bite so nigh
As benefits forgot:
Though thou the waters warp,
Thy sting is not so sharp
As friend remembered not.

Heigh-ho! sing, heigh-ho!
Unto the green holly:
Most friendship is feigning,
Most loving mere folly.
Sing, heigh-ho! the holly:
This life is most jolly.
